

EAST TAMPA & SULPHUR SPRINGS

In 1927, the Tampa Urban League issued a study titled Negro Life in Tampa. It included a great deal of information on Tampa's many African American communities. In referencing East Tampa, the study committee stated that it was among the only Black neighborhoods that was not surrounded by White residents, meaning that there was plenty of room to grow. Grow it did, and today East Tampa is a broad and thriving community.

The Sulphur Springs neighborhood, located on the north side of the Hillsborough River, was another suburb where Tampa's Black residents moved as the city grew. As the neighborhood grew, churches, schools, and businesses catering to the new residents began to pop up.
